I believe a vital component of creating cleaner air is to ban woodfire heaters in suburban homes. In winter there are communities in NSW in which it is impossible to breathe anything other than thick smoke because of the build-up from domestic woodfire heaters. This is not just a clean air issue but a serious health risk to all who suffer from bronchial disorders of any kind. Indeed, the density of smoke could potentially be fatal to asthma sufferers.