The major threat to Sydney's clean air future is the building of a second airport in the Sydney basin. Which will be situated at Badgerys Creek. Next to the mountains trapping all the pollution from the planes, cars and trucks. Unlike KSA which has sea breezes to take the pollution away. There is also no fuel line or infrastructure to the airport which means hundreds of fuel tankers travelling in the roads as well as all of the extra cars. If you are serious about Sydney's air pollution you must oppose the building of this huge airport.
